Collection of Medicine -- Department of Medical Education -- Publications -- Center for Educational Development Reports and Self-Studies, 1977-1980

An inventory of the collection at the University of Illinois at Chicago

Collection Summary

Creator: Department of Medical Education
Title: College of Medicine -- Department of Medical Education -- Publications -- Center for Educational Development Reports and Self-Studies, 1977-1980
Dates: 1977-1980
Abstract: The Department of Medical Education (DME) (formerly the Center for Educational Development) is a unit of the College of Medicine at the University of Illinois at Chicago. Established in 1959, it is nationally and internationally recognized for pioneering work in health professions education and research. This collection features ten different publications from the Center for Educational Development from 1977-1980.
Quantity: .5 Linear Feet
Identification: 016-25-00-08

Biographical Sketch

The Department of Medical Education (DME) (formerly the Center for Educational Development) is a unit of the College of Medicine at the University of Illinois at Chicago. Established in 1959, it is nationally and internationally recognized for pioneering work in health professions education and research. The Department offers courses and programs to meet the needs of today's health professional, including graduate and continuing medical education.

The DME is the oldest continuously operating unit of its kind in the world. The World Health Organization has designated DME as a collaborating center for education with emphasis on leadership development. National and international fellowships of interest to health professionals from all over the world are available in areas such as medical education, health systems research, and bioethics.

Scope and Contents
This collection features ten different publications from the Center for Educational Development from 1977-1980. Reports are published by internal and external medical professionals. Also includes unit study guides.

Detailed Description/Box and Folder Listing

Series I. Publications

Box 1

2. “Physiology of the Kidney,” Self-Study Unit II, Annamarie Herndon, 1977